SENIORS PRESENT BUSTS TO SCHOOL

Gettysburg High School Receives Handsome Presents from Class which is soon to Graduate. Last Program for School Year.

The Senior class of the Gettysburg High School this afternoon presented to the school two handsome plaster of Paris heroic busts of George Washington and Abraham Lincoln. The busts have been placed on either side of the main auditorium and are valuable additions to the furnishings of the building. The seniors bought them with the proceeds of "Among the Breakers" given several weeks ago.

Ernie Ziegler, president of the class made the presentation speech and Prof. W. A. Burgoon received the gift. The busts were unveiled by two members of the class, Miss Olive Hoke and Miss Mary Sheela.

A feature of the afternoon was the exhibition of the art work done during the past year under the instruction of Miss Annie Hake. Though given but a very small percentage of time in the High School curriculum the art department is rapidly developing into one of the best and most attractive branches.

Among the various exhibits of work by the pupils are studies in interior decoration, charcoal work taken from cast, copies from originals, exhibitions of copying from the object. The color work is exceptionally good and shows rapid development in the course at the High School. An elementary course in mechanical drawing has also been started. The work when compared with that of former years is particularly gratifying. The art course is given only to the pupils of the first three years, the seniors not devoting any time to that branch.

The last entertainment of the year was given this afternoon by the Palm Society in the presence of a number of friends. The program consisted of a paper by Sara Bigham, orations by Irene Stroup, Nellie Kelly, Olive Hoke; recitations by Etta Speese, Eva Walter, Ruth Gilbert, Margaret Williams, John Settle, Wilford Barbehehn; a piano solo by Myrtle Sheely; violin solo, Nellie Kelly; chorus, "The Farmer's Girl," Lottie Raffenberger, Mervin Sterner, Ethel Culp, Beulah Armor, Rosellen Gilbert, Anna Weaver, Ernie Ziegler, Earl Deardorff, Wilbur Stallsmith, Irvin Stine, William Blair, Edward Barbehehn, Luther Musselman.

RECORD CROWD AT GILLILAND SALE

Throng of between Two Thousand and Twenty Five Hundred People Estimated to have Attended Thursday Sale. Amounted to $5400.

The sale of the stock and personal property of the late John H. Gilliland in Straban township on Thursday beat all records for big sales in the county this year. The attendance is estimated at from 2000 to 2500 and the sale amounted to over $5400. G. R. Thompson called the sale, and C. C. Bream and Pius A. Miller were the clerks.

The vehicles extended along the road for fully a mile from the scene of the sale and the crowd was so great that it was practically impossible for a large percentage of the people attending to get close enough to bid. Refreshment and confectionery stands which had for sale oysters, ice cream and other things to eat were besieged by people and sold out with no difficulty whatever.

Auctioneer Thompson began calling the sale at half past nine in the morning and, with a brief intermission at noon, during which a substitute continued the work, finished at four o'clock in the afternoon. The bidders were prompt and there was no delay in disposing of the stock and articles. Everything sold well. The best pair of horses brought $600 and cows sold from $40 up, the best cow bringing $75.00.

The sale had been widely advertised and there were people present from Carlisle, Harrisburg, Emmitsburg and other places equally far away. Dr. E. L. Schoop, of Harrisburg, was one of the most active bidders.

All roads seemed to lead to the sale even though the weather was unfavorable and from early morning until close to noon teams were to be seen traveling toward the Gilliland farm. The return trip started about three o'clock and from that on until all had departed the entire section of the county presented such a scene as might be expected on "B. G. Thursday" of a county fair.

Reception Given Delegates to Missionary Convention in Seminary Refectory on Thursday Evening. Interesting Addresses.

It is said that satisfactory arrangements can not be made with the railroad company.

RECORD YOUR DEEDS
By an Act of Assembly of 1893, "All Deeds and Conveyances shall be recorded within ninety days after their execution, or shall be adjudged fraudulent and void against subsequent purchasers."
Also the Act of Assembly of 1906, prescribes a short form of Deeds, and "again requires the recording to make them valid."
It is also a great protection against loss or deed being burned by having them recorded, and costs but a small sum, compared to getting a new deed.
Bring or send them into the Recorder's office, and in a few days they will be returned to you.

DEATH SENTENCE KILLS HIM

Ex-Judge Hoffman Dies of Apoplexy After Losing First Murder Case.

Freehold, N. J., April 21.—Within twenty-four hours after he had lost his first homicide case, ex-Judge William T. Hoffman, one of the best known lawyers in the state, dropped dead at his home, "Lasada," at Eng-lishtown, Monmouth county.

Mr. Hoffman seemed in his usual health, but the conviction of Heidemann on Tuesday and his sentence to be electrocuted seemed to prey on his mind.

Mr. Hoffman appeared in some of the most noted criminal trials in New Jersey. In all other cases the lawyer had successfully fought off a verdict in the first degree, but he was unable to do so in the Heidemann case, and this fact many of his friends declare unerved him.

He commented freely on the conviction of the Asbury Park slayer and referred to it as the first case he had lost. He went to his home in Eng-lishtown, and after eating a hearty meal complained of feeling tired and went into the library. Some hours later his wife heard him groan and then fell off the chair. She summoned help, but when a doctor arrived her husband was dead.

Maud S. Shot to Death.

Springfield, Ky., April 21.—Maud S., the famous trotter, owned by the late George M. Stearns, was shot to death, as provided for in Stearns' will. Maud S. was thirty-five years old and blind.

WOULD GIVE TO TAFT FULL POWER

Senator Stone Urges Congress to Act in Mexican Crisis.

WOULD PROTECT AMERICANS

Declares President Should Be Empowered to Employ Force to Prevent Repetition of "Bloody Outrage" at Douglas, Ariz.

Washington, April 21.—The Mexican situation was discussed in congress for the first time, when Senator Stone, of Missouri, a Democrat, urged that the president be empowered to employ force to prevent a repetition of the "bloody outrage" committed at Douglas, Ariz.

Senator Stone was very harsh on Mexico in referring to occurrences along the border. The fact that he is a member of the senate committee on foreign relations added to the gravity of his statement.

Senators Bacon, of Georgia; Root, of New York, and Lodge, of Massachusetts, all members of the foreign relations committee, vigorously opposed Senator Stone's suggestion that the president be empowered by congress to use the military forces of the United States according to his discretion. They declared that the adoption of such a resolution would amount to a declaration of war against Mexico.

Senator Stone said among other things: "I presume these Mexican people have an inherent right to fight if they want to fight," said Mr. Stone, "and generally speaking to fight wherever they please on Mexican soil, but I deny that they have any shadow of right to deliberately enter into a fur-tious conflict on the border line and within easy gunshot of populous American towns and cities, thus unavoidably and imminently endangering the lives and property of American citizens."

Praises the President.

"I believe that an act of that kind is in effect an attack on Americans, and that it presents a case where the president would be justified in ordering out troops to take such action as might be necessary to put a stop to the fighting, even though it might lead to a struggle between the United States and Mexican forces."

Senator Stone praised the president for having acted wisely in the face of great provocation.

"Congress," he said, "should at once and without delay authorize the president to employ whatever force may be necessary to prevent a repetition
of the bloody outrage committed at Douglas, Ariz., and a repetition of which is threatened at El Paso, Tex."

He added that congress should record its opinion in positive terms that it is the president's duty to use whatever force the circumstances may require to protect Americans on their own territory.

"His authority in this behalf," said Mr. Stone, "should be extended far enough and have sufficient latitude fully to warrant him in using our military forces in whatever way he may deem expedient and necessary to accomplish the desired end, even though it should lead to an intrusion upon Mexican territory."

After Senators Root and Lodge had voiced their objection to Senator Stone's expression the latter's resolution was referred to the committee on foreign relations.

Doctors Couldn't Save Him.

Philadelphia, April 21.—Little Herman Reiss, two years old, was given a cent at his home, 724 North Seventh swallowed it accidentally. The child was hurried to the Jefferson hospital, where physicians did their best to save his life. Notwithstanding their efforts, Herman died.

propriation could not be used for the expense of sending representative types of the first American.

A Sympathetic Oriental

By EUNICE IDA BLAKE

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I am the wife of a United States army officer and have lived a good deal of my time on the Pacific slope, where the only servants to be had are Chinese. There is no doubt but the Chinese make very good servants if they wish to be good, but if they prefer to be bad they can excel at that too.

I married in the infantry and went out with my husband to a station where the Chinese were as thick as blackberries. I had the pride natural to a bride of showing how well I could keep house and appreciated the importance of winning the confidence of my servants, or, rather, at that time my servant, for the wife of a second lieutenant—either she nor her husband having anything but pay—is not supposed to keep more than one.

My first Chinese servant was Ti Wang. Ti was the smoothest, softest tongued rascal I ever met. He had enough duplicity in him for an eighteenth century European diplomat. To him words were indeed intended to conceal ideas.

"You really young wife," he said to me. "You want very good Chinaman for cook. Much Chinaman very bad.
Ti feel sorry for Malican lady. Ti be good cook."

All this was spoken with a look of commiseration for a young thing like myself that to one familiar with the man from the Flowery Kingdom would have boded no good. I did not doubt that my servant would be a great comfort to me. It was not long before his true inwardness showed itself. He first made an excuse of having a sick brother who couldn't wash washed to provide for the whole me-out of a month's wages in advance.
Then he surreptitiously removed under his capacious coat and ample sleeves all the staple kitchen provisions I had bought to last several months. Tea, coffee, sugar and spices disappeared like magic. Then, having received an offer of better wages than I was giving him, he took himself off without so much as saying he was going.

My next servant was Charlie Li.
Why so many Chinese are called Charlie I don't know, though Li is an appropriate name for them. Charlie was recommended by the major's wife, who had him in her kitchen for awhile when her regular servant was ill. She told me she would rather have Charlie than the other. I had no fault to find with Charlie except that he stayed with me but a day.
He didn't stay long enough to ask for any wages, and since experience had taught me not to pay Chinamen in advance he didn't get any.

After this servants were passing through my kitchen, none staying with me more than a week. In vain I refused to engage one unless he would agree to stay a month. Something must be scaring them away. I didn't see how they could see anything in a young woman of nineteen to frighten them, and I was the only person with whom they came in contact. One of them, who was about to depart after three days of service, I asked why he left.

"You get Malican cook. Chinaman not very good in this house."
"Why not?"
"Donno. Chinaman won't stay here."

"Why do you go so soon after coming?"
"I am very well."

He did not seem to care whether I believed him or not. Indeed, he knew he was lying, and I knew it too. However, I had had such bad luck with Chinese servants and there were no

others to be had—that I made up my mind to do my own cooking for awhile.

Meanwhile my husband, who had been making inquiries for me as to servants from brother officers' wives, began to be considerably vexed that I could not keep any of them. There was no such loss of servants among those who sent me mine, and it appeared that I must either be too exacting or have a frightful temper or some other blemish that prevented a servant from working for me, whereas the truth was that after the earlier ones left I simply gave up everything to those who came later, granting all requests and opposing them in nothing. I didn't even dare criticize the cooking of a single dish. The first time I had with my husband was when he ventured to remark that perhaps I didn't give them quite free rein enough. I resented the imputation with a fervor that sent him off to the officers' club and prevented his ever making any such suggestion in future.

One day I put the tin bread box out in the sun, turning it up on its side and exposing the bottom. I was surprised to see Chinese characters on it.
I wondered what they meant. When a woman begins to wonder what is the meaning of anything it is preparatory to making plans to find out. I called the servant of my next door neighbor, who was beating a rug, to come over and translate the characters. He did so as follows:

"This is a very bad woman. She doesn't pay the servants' wages and gives no extras."

That smooth tongued villain Ti Wang, who had pitted my youth and inexperience and had robbed me beside, had chalked a notice on the bread box warning all other servants against me. I waited patiently till my husband came in from his duties and, showing him the characters on the bottom of the box, handed him a translation.

"He made a mistake."
A man from an up state town entered a conference in New York city and sat down near the press table. It was noticed that, though he appeared bowed down, the man was eager to be pleased. He clapped boisterously at the slightest provocation, and where others only smiled he would throw

others to be had—that I made up my
mind to do my own cooking for awhile.

MADERO ISSUES AN ULTIMATUM

WIN Attack Ciudad Juarez Unless Diaz Resigns.

ANNOUNCES PEACE TERMS

Leader of Mexican Insurrectos Says Dictator Must Step Aside and Border Town Surrender to Him, Pending Changes.

El Paso, Tex., April 21.—For twenty-four hours from Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock there will be no attack upon Ciudad Juarez unless the soldiers in the town attempt to further fortify the place.

This is the statement of Francisco I. Madero, provisional president of Mexico, and leader of the Insurrectos. The twenty-four hours he gives Diaz to say whether he will resign as president of Mexico.

If Diaz does not resign, then the cannon now trained on Juarez will begin their assault on the town. Here are Madero's terms:

1. President Diaz must withdraw in favor of any member of the presidential cabinet.
2. Juarez must be delivered to the provisional government pending the changes in the federal government.

No attack will be made upon Juarez before Friday afternoon unless the federal forces attempt to take advantage of the armistice.

Madero's statement is as follows: "The peace commission came unofficially and asked under what terms I would make peace. I said I would agree, as a have already said to Dr. Gomez, that in the interest of peace I would resign as provisional president of Mexico, but only if I consider that the will of the people has been satisfied, otherwise the revolution will continue notwithstanding any peace negotiations. I know that all the people want the retirement of Diaz and no re-election. For that purpose I will accept as provisional president any one of the members of the present cabinet who will call a new election."

"In case this condition is agreed upon we want Juarez to be delivered to us and then an armistice will be signed."

"I will wait until Friday to hear the result of the peace negotiations which were directed to Dr. Francisco Gomez. If no answer comes I will commence hostilities."

The ultimatum delivered to the peace pilgrimage, which was made by Felix Martinez, of El Paso; Lio Esquivel Obregon and Oscar Braniff, of Mexico City, speaking independently, of the federal government; Silvestro Terrazas, of Chihuahua; Dr. J. A. Samaniego, of El Paso; Luis L. Samaniego, of Juarez, and Emiliano Enriquez, also of Chihuahua.

Madero Doesn't Want Presidency.

"I do not want the presidency," said Madero during the conference. "If I am willing to sacrifice everything, wealth, position, family, name and even my life for the cause of Mexico, Diaz ought not to hesitate to sacrifice the position that he has held for over thirty years for the cause of his country."

Oscar Braniff said: "I am President Diaz's best friend, but I am not speaking for him, but for myself alone. I feel sure, personally, that President Diaz will arrange for an armistice."

"But Diaz has made simple promises before and has failed to keep them," Madero broke in. "All I care for is to get the bone of contention—Diaz—out of the way. Then let the Mexican nation rule itself. I have said before that I do not want anything, so long as this end is accomplished. That is all I ask."

Madero's army surrounds Juarez on the northwest, west and southwest. The main command is in the mountains in the direction of Rancho Flores, almost due west of Juarez. Garibaldi's command of over 200 men is northwest of Juarez, in the vicinity of Orozco Hill, where the Insurrecto artillery is mounted and where the Insurrecto chief and his lieutenants have been meeting.

The only danger to El Paso from rifle balls will be from the men at Baucha if they should attack from the southwest. Bullets fired from that direction might fall into El Paso.

Insurrectos declare that the commander-in-chief, however, will draw all his men into the hills west and north-west of the city before attacking, and that there will be no firing in the direction of El Paso. It is reported to be the plan to shell the town with artillery first and then to storm it.

The United States troops are closely guarding the border. Regardless of the fact that ammunition and food were smuggled over the river by Insurrectos throughout the night, the United States troops captured a total of 26,000 rounds of ammunition and thirteen rifles from Insurrectos.

DIAZ REPLY IS UNFRIENDLY

President Taft Determined Not to Intervene in Mexican War.

Washington, April 21.—The receipt here of an outline of the reply the Mexican government has made to President Taft's strong remonstrance against the conduct of warfare on the border somewhat depressed the hopes of the officials, who had confidently expected a completely responsive reply from Mexico.

Withholding official statements until the full text of the De la Barra note is at hand, the president, in full knowledge of the fact that it is recriminatory in some points, is disposed to deal with it leniently. The president's rejoinder must be based upon further official reports from the American military officers, whose impartiality in the fighting at Agua Prieta has been impeached.

That President Taft is more determined than ever that the United States must not intervene in Mexico became known in Washington following a conference between the president, Secretary Knox and a committee from the house of representatives.

The president stated that difficulties must arise out of conditions in Mexico because of the proximity of fighting to the American line.

"But," he is quoted as saying, "it takes two to make a war."

It is feared that a disposition prevails in Mexico to make political capital out of the activity of Americans, and this will be promptly resented if it appears as likely to impair the good relations of the two countries.

Two allegations in the Diaz note—that a Mexican officer was shot from the American custom house porch and that a rebel took a gun across the line to be repaired—have been absolutely denied by persons who were on the spot watching the battle of Agua Prieta. It is considered that these criticisms are far-fetched.

BARBER SPORTS HAT INTENDED FOR BRYAN

Burlington Friends Misjudged Size of His Head.

Burlington, N. J., April 21.—Because George W. Anthony, a prominent Burlington merchant, who is a friend of William J. Bryan, misjudged by a full size the cranial of the peerless one, a $50 imported beaver hat has made George Skinner envious of all the colored barbers in Burlington county.

The headpiece was to have been presented to Mr. Bryan on the occasion of the recent Jeffersonian banquet, but when it was discovered that even a No. 8 might be a tight fit over the silver locks of the Nebraskan, the hat, which was a No. 7, was put away on the top shelf by friend Anthony.

The hat which Skinner will wear when the sun shines again on Sunday is said to be the most classy article of its kind manufactured. It boasts of a light fawn color, now the rage on Paris boulevards. Anthony sold the $50 beaver to his barber, who bid $20 for the pleasure of sporting under the brim "that might have been."

Thomas H. Birch, Bryan's bosom friend in the east, said: "There's just one solace for Mr. Bryan. Such a headpiece might have transferred him from the newspaper cartoons he loses so dearly and have put him in the fashion plates. Maybe it was a lucky escape."

MURDER IN INSANE ASYLUM

Lunatic Kills Fellow Inmate by Blow With Table Leg.

Pottsville, Pa., April 21.—Tearing a leg from a table in a fit of insane rage, Adam Kuntzeleman, an inmate of the insane department of the almshouse at Schuylkill Haven, struck John Polanis, another inmate, a terrific blow upon the head, injuring him so badly that he died almost instantly.

The madman then attacked his keepers, but they succeeded in overpowering him and rendering him helpless. Kuntzeleman was a prisoner in the county jail until a few weeks ago, when he was removed to the almshouse upon the recommendations of two physicians appointed by the court to inquire into his sanity.

Seriously Accuse Doctor and Nurse.

Corry, Pa., April 21.—Septic poisoning, not alcoholic acid, killed pretty Lottie Dugan, the Youngstown, Ohio, girl, found dead in the Millburn hospital Sunday. This was the verdict of the coroner's jury at its final session. As a result Dr. F. A. Beebe, the proprietor, and Miss May Fleberling, head nurse, are under arrest, charged with performing a criminal operation. Bail was fixed at $1500 each for a hearing on April 27.

Contest Starts For $1250,000.

Nashville, Tenn., April 21.—Exercising of evil influence over Mrs. Anna H. Murphy, who recently died in New York, by which, it is declared, they seek to inherit her fortune of $1,250,000, is charged against Thomas Felder and his wife, whom Mrs. Murphy adopted, in a chancery court suit filed in this city.

DEFENDS OLD SLAVE'S SON

Lawyer Repaying Debt Contracted in Childhood.

LIFE WAS SAVED BY FATHER

Now Attorney Is Trying to Save Son, Who Is on Trial on a Charge of Murder.

New York, April 21.—James W. Osborne, the lawyer, is defending a son of one of his father's former slaves, who is being tried on an indictment for murder. The father of the indicted man saved Osborne from drowning in his childhood days on his father's plantation.

The defendant is Edward Osborne, the family taking its name from their master, as was the custom in antebellum days, and he is accused of shooting another negro in a fracas which grew out of a dispute as to the best manner of cooking pork chops.

The elder Osborne had over a hundred slaves on his big plantation near Charlotte, N. C. When Lincoln freed them they had been so well treated that few left.

Forty-one years ago, when James W. Osborne was eleven years old, he fell into a creek behind the house. Pete Osborne, father of the defendant, jumped into the water and pulled out the drowning lad.

Pete, now a snowed polled negro, eighty years old, was in court. He raised a family of eighteen children, of which the young man on trial was the biggest. He was the body servant of his master and followed the Osbornes north.

Several months ago the discussion of the merits of broiled, boiled and breaded pork chops took place in a restaurant near the corner of Carmine and Bedford streets. Lawyer Osborne said that his client was simply a peacemaker, who interfered between the supporters of the various culinary systems.

The fight was adjourned to the street. Some one drew a knife and stabbed the young negro in the back. Osborne drew a revolver, and Louis Stiger, a negro, was shot and killed.

Osborne was indicted, and his aged father came down to his former master's office to tell the trouble. The imprisoned man was without means of paying counsel. The lawyer got the court to assign him to defend the son, and he took up his duties with perhaps more than his accustomed enthusiasm.

Lawyer Osborne said that he would prove that his client acted in self-defense. He said the young negro happened to be present when the trouble arose, that he foolishly tried to separate the combatants and that he received a knife thrust for his trouble. He then drew his revolver to defend himself from further cuts of the knife.

Judge Day has been acting president since the death of Paul Morton early in the year.

RICH GIRL WEDS CHAUFFEUR

Baltimore Society Belle Marries While Mother Is Absent.

Baltimore, April 21.—Miss Margaret D. Hambleton, daughter of Mrs. Frank S. Hambleton, and Owen Frank Monahan, twenty-one years of age, an automobile mechanic, were privately married here.

The bride is twenty years of age. Her father, the late Frank S. Hambleton, was a prominent banker of Baltimore, and the family is of the highest social position. Mrs. Hambleton, the mother, was out of the city, and it is understood that she had no knowledge of her daughter's purpose.

The newly wedded pair left on an automobile trip through the south immediately after the ceremony.

Monahan, who is a college graduate, accompanied the Hambleton family to Europe three years ago as an expert chauffeur and was thus thrown much in Miss Hambleton's company.

It is understood that there were strong objections to the match on the part of the bride's family. Advantage was taken of the opportunity offered by the absence of the mother; a friend of the groom procured the necessary license, and soon after the ceremony was simply and quickly performed at the rectory of St. Philip's and St. James' Catholic church.

MARK TWAIN ONCE SAID

"It is Spring Fever that causes the general unrest, lack of ambition and run-down condition which pervades the human system in the Spring of the year."

The sudden change from frigid to torrid weather occurs within a few weeks, especially in our northern states.

No wonder pulmonary troubles—pneumonia, spring fever, and all such ailments are almost universal.

If people in this vicinity only knew the value of Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic (without oil) at this season of the year, we would not be able to get enough to supply the demand.

Vinol tones up the digestive organs, purifies and enriches the blood, promotes healthful sleep and a normal appetite.

Old people, delicate children, run down, overworked and tired women, those suffering from bronchitis, chronic coughs and colds, all derive great benefit from its use.

Try a bottle of Vinol with the understanding that your money will be returned if it does not help you. Peo-

MADE A BIG HIT.

The First Line Billy Florence Spoke
Upon the Stage.

The late W. J. Florence liked to recall his first appearance on the stage.
The play was Evadne, one of the old standard romances in which Mary Anderson appeared very frequently in the earlier stages of her career.

"I was one of the conspirators," said Florence in recalling the night. "Hold back!" was my line. It was the first, last and only line I had in the play. I was naturally very timid at rehearsals, and I delivered this order in a way unlike that of a real conspirator.

"Shout it my boy, shout it—let them hear that you have a voice," said the stage manager. "If you want to succeed in this business you have got to have confidence in yourself. If you go to market with a pound of butter to

"THE LINE WENT."

sell you must make as much noise as if you had a thousand. That's the way to get on."

"Well, the eventful night came. I got my cue, entered and, rushing down to the footlights, yelled at the top of my voice, 'Hold back!' You could have heard me many blocks in the open. I can assure you the line 'went.' The audience roared with laughter. No other line in the play made such a bit that night as did my line—the very first I ever spoke on the stage."—Kansas City Star.

Grappling With the Menu.

An unwise providence had guided Giles toward a fairly fashionable London restaurant. He could not understand a word of French; but, determined that he would not unnecessarily display his ignorance before the waiter, he pointed to an item and said:
"I'll have some of that, please."

The waiter looked compassionate.
"I'm sorry, sir," he said, gently, "but the band is playing that just at present."

The End of the Story.

There is an amusing anecdote about King Louis of Bavaria in Lady Dorothy Nevill's reminiscences: "Resolving to relieve the needs of one of his poor but brave old-camps, he sent him a small portfolio, bound like a book, in which were deposited 500 crowns. Some time afterward he met the officer and said to him, 'Ah, well, how did you like the new work which I sent you?' 'Excessively, sire,' replied the colonel. 'I read it with such interest that I expect the king smiled and when the officer's birthday arrived he presented him with another portfolio similar in every respect to the first, but with these words engraved upon it: 'This book is complete in two volumes.'"

A Punch He Feared.

Every fight fan in New York, says the correspondent of the Cincinnati Times Star, knows little "K. O." Brown, who has won that title because he began by winning most of his battles by a knockout. When he is in the ring he is a muscular youngster, all wire and muscle, and with a most formidable fighting front. Outside the ring he is just a schoolboy, blond, smooth faced, modest and everything but pugilistic in appearance.
The other night the coppers raided the street on which he lives and caught "K. O." and a dozen other youthful malefactors. They had been kicking a football in the open street. They were taken to the night court.

"Can I give a name that ain't me own?" asked "K. O." of the court.
The magistrate wanted to know what was up, of course, and expressed astonishment when he was told that the quiet, pleasant looking little chap was the fighter who is working his way toward the top of the pugilistic tree.
"And why do you want to keep your name a secret?" asked he of young Brown.

"Because," said the fighter, "if me mother hears that I have been pinched she'll lam the daylight out of me."

A LOST MANUSCRIPT

By JOHN Y. LARNED

Copyright by American Press Association, 1911.

I became a theatrical manager when I was still very young. I was not at all systematic and was consequently always in trouble. I finally received a lesson that made me change my habits.
One day I left the theater and had entered a cab just about to start away when a girl's face appeared at the window.

"Beg pardon for stopping you," she said. "Are you Mr. Closser, the manager?"

"I am."

"Would you be so kind as to read a play for me?"

I had more plays than I could put on the boards for two years, but the girl had such a winning smile that I consented. I took a roll of manuscript from her; told her to call at my office in a week and I would give her an answer.

In a week she called.

"Have you read my play?" she asked, with that same winning smile I had seen before.

"No; I have been very busy. I'm sorry. Could you give me another week?"

"Certainly. I'm in no great hurry."

"Well, come on this day week."

I went to my rooms and ransacked every corner for that manuscript. It was nowhere to be found. I must have left it in the cab. But I had picked the cab up on the street and couldn't possibly know it from other cabs. I should have admitted the loss and taken the consequences. But I was young and prided myself on my ability to get out of such scrapes. I would first win the girl's good will, then confess and compromise the matter as best I could.

When she called again I put her off by offering her two excellent seats for the evening's performance. She said they would be of no use to her since she had no escort. She smiled at me so sweetly when she said this that I told her I would escort her myself.
I not only did so, but said several nice things to her about the opening of her play, a few passages of which I professed to have read. I regretted doing so, however, because she asked me a lot of questions about it which I couldn't answer. I got all mixed up over it and was obliged to tell her that I thought I had got hold of the wrong manuscript. When I left her I told her that three days should not elapse before I had read the play, and I would be sure that it was her play and not some other author's play.

I put the poor girl off for three months. She was very nice to me about it all this time, but the further I proceeded with my deception the further I sank in the mire. The worst part of the matter was that when a week passed without my seeing her I found myself like a toper without his glass of grog.

One day the girl came into my office and told me that she had given the scenario of her play (its skeleton) to a rival manager, and he had assured her that if the dialogue was filled in effectively he would put it on the boards at once. When I tried to put her off some more a beautiful bright tear stood in her eye.

When a man is tilting between indifference and love for a woman he may be easily unbalanced on the side of love by one of those little globules.
At any rate, I lost my balance. I confessed to have lost her manuscript, but told her not to mind a little thing like that since I loved her and had quite enough for both of us. If she would marry me it would be all right.
I kissed away the tear, and her smile was like the sun peeping from the other side of an April cloud.

From that moment I heard no more of the missing manuscript. After a few months' engagement we were married and after a brief wedding trip settled down to the humdrum of life.

One evening when I went home my wife told me that she had received "first night" tickets to a new play that was to be put on the boards and asked me to go with her to see the performance. I tried to beg off, saying that I was needed at my own theater, but she insisted, and I yielded.

Our seats were a proscenium box on a level with the stage. My wife pulled a curtain before her so that she could not be seen except from the stage.
The play opened so well that I exclaimed, "By Jove, why didn't I get hold of this?" As the performance proceeded it was evident that a bit was being made. I ground my teeth in vexation at having missed getting on what promised to be a money maker.

At the climax in the third act the audience came down in a thunder of applause. Calls were made for the author, but the author did not appear.
The manager came before the curtain and announced that he would appear at the end of the play. This satisfied them, and the performance went on.

When the curtain went down on the last act not one of the audience rose to go. The manager came to our box and, offering his hand to my wife, assisted her on to the stage and placed her before the footlights, where she stood bowing till the applause subsided, when she made a very graceful little speech.

"What the Dickens is the meaning of all this?" I asked when she returned.

"Oh, this is the play you lost. You left the manuscript in the cab, and my address being on it, the finder kindly sent it to me the next day."

"Well, I'll be hanged!"

How to Stop Drinking

It was formerly customary for the habitual drinker to take the pledge regularly, sometimes once a year and sometimes in every fit of remorse that follow his debauches, and then—Break it!

But now it is gradually dawning on the world that pledges do no stop drunkenness. The nervous system of the habitual drinker is diseased and he must have treatment that will cure this condition. If Orinone does not benefit after a

GOOD QUALITIES OF THE GALLOWAY

The Galloway is the oldest breed of pure bred cattle. We do not know its origin, but it derives its name from an ancient province in the south-western part of Scotland. The earliest histories of Scotland make mention of a breed of black polled cattle, and the excellent quality of the beef the breed produces became known to the English butchers centuries ago. In the early part of the present century thousands of head of Galloway cattle annually were driven from south-western Scotland to the luxuriant pastures of southern England, where they were fitted for the London market.

Galloway beef is well marbled, has an excellent flavor, and there is very little waste to the carcass. That is why Galloways always sell at the highest market prices.

The early breeders in the Galloway country of Scotland gave their attention to producing high class meat for the market. Although no attention was given to exploiting the merits of the Galloway in other sections of Great Britain, the breed was improved by the systematic mating of the best specimens of each sex.

The climate of southwestern Scotland is moist and mild, and the cattle are allowed to run in the open year round. Centuries of outdoor life have made the Galloway the hardiest of all breeds of cattle. Of the hundreds of head of Galloway cattle selected in Scotland for importation to America scarcely one has failed to pass the government test for tuberculosis. The characteristic coat of hair of the Galloway also is due to centuries of outdoor life. In many respects the Galloway robe is far superior to that of the bul-falo. There is a soft, thick, mossy un-dercoat of hair covered by an outer coat of longer hair which protects the animal from the severities of climate.
The most desirable color is a dark ma-

The four leading beef breeds of cattle rank as to size in the following order: Shorthorns, Herefords, Aberdeen-Angus and Galloways.
This does not indicate, however, that the smaller breeds are the least profitable. Early maturity is an important factor in economical beef production, and the tables show that the smaller breeds approach maturity more rapidly than the larger breeds. The Galloway consumes less feed than the Shorthorn, and the cost of producing 100 pounds of gain is practically the same for both Galloways and Herefords. The smaller breeds are compactly built, and their weight is sometimes deceptive to those not familiar with the breed. Their condition is often astonishing when compared with their pastures, and their weight is no less so when compared with the apparent bulk of the animal. The Galloway bull shown was a prize winner at one of the fall shows.

hogany brown. Many of the calves with their first coats of hair are almost red in color.

Galloways were first imported into the United States in the early eighties.
They proved to be great rustlers on the range and soon became popular with ranchmen. Although ranching practically is a thing of the past, the rustling characteristics of the breed make it an economical producer of beef. On the cheap grazing lands of the west Galloways, by nature adapted to make such excellent use of the cheaper and coarser feeds that go to waste on every farm, are superior to all other breeds in producing beef economically. It is pre-eminently a farmer's breed, and it merits the important position it has attained in the field of beef production.

Study the Silo.

If all that is claimed for the silo is true then it is one of the most important and valuable buildings on the farm, says the Kansas Farmer. If only one-half of it is true it is well worth investigating. Now is the time to investigate, before the spring work begins. Study the silo question from all points of view and see if the actual saving of nearly one-half the corn crop that you have worked to produce is not worth while. See if the convenience in feeding this corn crop which is afforded by the silo is not worth while. See if the giving of a succulent ration which is greedily eaten by the stock during the dry spells of summer and the winter season does not pay. Note how the milk flow is kept up by the cows and how easy it is to fatten a lot of baby beef with silage and alfalfa. Then note the economy of it all and see if you don't need a silo.

Feeding Floor For Hogs.

A good floor for feeding market hogs will pay for itself in a very short time.
The bulk of the corn fed is fed on the ear or shelled, and in rainy weather the hog usually is compelled to eat more or less dirt with the corn, and in dry weather dust will necessarily be eaten. With a good feeding floor the grain may be fed with no waste, whether wet or dry. Cement concrete is probably the best material to use for this purpose, and a floor of this kind will last a lifetime.
